Understand people, communities and the forces that shape society today.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

“Man is a social being.” Sociology is the study of society: people, their relationships with one another, and their behaviour towards different communities and groups. That behaviour is shaped by many interlinked forces, from urban and rural environments to ethnicity, religion and culture, and sociology analyses how they connect to personal, political, environmental and economic matters.

The Bachelor Program in Arts – Sociology at Aster Academy builds on this foundation over three years. Learners begin with an introduction to sociology, research methods and the principles of management, then study industrial sociology, the sociology of Indian society and environmental history, before moving to political and economic sociology, ethics, human behaviour and development, and organisational culture and behaviour.

Delivered through our flexible online learning ecosystem, with a fast-track option, the programme develops research, analytical and communication skills valued in social work, NGOs and community development, human resources, public administration, research, media and further postgraduate study.
