Course Description

The two-year Master of Arts in Political Science is designed for postgraduate learners who want a deep understanding of how political ideas, institutions and power shape societies. The programme covers political theory and practice, the description and analysis of political systems, and political behaviour.

Students also study public administration, historical and contemporary political systems, national and international politics, government policies and practices, international relations and public affairs. Topics such as political sociology, Western and Indian political thought, India's foreign policy and research methodology build strong analytical, research and communication skills for careers in policy, governance and public life.
